Foreword

1850-1950, Olympia's First Hundred Years!

In 1847 Edmund Sylvester and Levi Smith each took up a claim of 320 acres under the laws of the Oregon Provisional government. Sylvester's was at what is now Chamber's Prairie and Smith's at the southern tip of Budd's Inlet. These men had dreams of some day founding a town, dreams which were to be realized. For from their one crude, 16-foot-square log cabin grew the present Capital city of Washington.

Smith's claim was formally dedicated as a town in the spring of 1850. Formerly known as Smithfield, its name was changed to Olympia, a name inspired by the lofty Olympic mountains.

Changes in the little settlement were made swiftly. Evidence of this comes from a statement in the Columbian, the territory's weekly newspaper, of September 25, 1852:

"The present flourishing town of Olympia, which but two years ago was adorned by but one solitary frame building, can now be counted by twenties—embracing hotels, well-fitted stores, and various mechanic shops, with two splendid saw mills and a grist mill in its immediate vicinity."

By 1855 Olympia had quite a variety of industries. For many years the principal of these was logging and the manufacture of ship timbers.

Later years saw such industries as oysters developed. Eight hundred sixty-seven pupils attended the two Olympia public schools, and one private one, in 1874, and the town had four churches.

Some of the vivid incidents in Olympia's history include an Indian scare, earthquakes, and a long drawn out argument over whether or not Olympia would be the capital. One of the arguments used against Olympia was the lack of accommodations for legislators. A new hotel was built, but the controversy did not entirely die down until World War I.

Now, in May, 1950, Olympia celebrates its centennial. Olympia high school is proud to take part in this celebration, and proud of the part it plays in community life. Besides giving its students a well-rounded education it provides much entertainment for the community. Adults may also attend night classes at the high school.

As for entertainment, every Olympian is familiar with such functions as the three annual concerts, one a band concert, the others featuring the combined talents of all instruments and vocal groups. Two plays are enacted every year by the students, for the enjoyment of children and adults alike. Nearly everyone in Olympia is interested in the many high school athletic contests. Among these are football, basketball, baseball, track, tennis and golf. One daily and two weekly radio programs are broadcast over local station KGY by high school students.

We of the 1950 Olympiad staff feel that no more appropriate theme could be chosen for this year's annual than "Olympia's First Hundred Years." Here is your 1950 Centennial Edition.

DEDICATION

Olympiad's dedication this year had to be a big one; big for the year, Olympia's one hundredth; big for the celebration commemorating the centennial; and finally, big for the number of people who did the celebrating. For the fact that everyone in Olympia participated in this long-to-be-remembered event was the key to its success. So it is with the greatest pleasure that we of the 1950 Olympiad dedicate this book to you, the people of Olympia.

ADMINISTRATION

Perhaps Principal W. J. Matters has not been with Olympia high school for a century; never-the-less, in his 19 years here he has done some admirable pioneering. He came to Olympia from Kelso in 1931 when the student body consisted of 1150. One of the first things he remembers the student body doing was replacing the racks for lockers. In 1934 the number of classes was changed from five to six. The year 1935 marked a student attendance of an odd 1300.

Mr. Matters has had a tremendous task supervising the ever increasing enrollment of future pioneers and their great number of activities. He has given much help and displayed a great deal of friendliness in executing these problems.

One of the early homesteaders to William Winlock Miller high school is Miss Elizabeth Crockett, dean of girls. She joined the administration in 1930 and since then has won an overwhelming amount of friends through her generosity and friendliness. Miss Crockett is social adviser and assistant to Girls club. In the beginning only two periods a day were allotted to the counseling of girls. Now devoting all her time to this matter she finds more and more of her day filled with conferences and private interviews. Miss Crockett reports that the girls used to hold a "Girls Party," where the girls came dressed in costume. Through the years Miss Crockett has continued to be helpful with willingness and sincerity.

Needing no introduction is the real pioneer who has been with Olympia high school for the past 31 years, Leland P. Brown. Commencing his advisory career in 1919, he taught English. In 1920 he became principal and journalism instructor. Mr. Brown served the scholars as principal for 11 years. Upon the arrival of Willard J. Matters in 1931 he rose to superintendent of schools. Many changes have taken place in the high school since Mr. Brown first set up his log desk in the stockade of Olympia halls. The average class has increased from 6 to 35 pupils. In 1918 the old school burned and in its place the present structure was built. Although faces and personalities have changed, Mr. Brown is still the helpful and understanding friend to everyone.

Forging ahead in the field of Vocational Guidance is James H. Bohle, Olympia high school's vice principal and dean of boys. He came to this ever-increasing community in the fall of 1930 and since then has been responsible for the vocational guidance program. Mr. Bohle devotes much of his busy time to talking with the students and discussing their problems. In the past he has taught social science classes. Executing the duties of vice principal takes much of this fellow's time and energy. Adviser to Boys club, he comes in contact with many unusual requests. Never-the-less, he remains friendly and willing to serve the students whenever possible.

Teaching

Although class instruction is still considered the most important part of the high school student's schedule, much of modern education comes from the social contacts made through committee work and activities. The students now learn to cooperate with others by participation in these extracurricular activities. Teachers often labor long hours after regular instruction time to help students in these activities. Such undertakings as athletics, journalism, dramatics, associated student body activities, debate, public address system, motion picture operation, stage work, dance, Mothers teas and Dads night involve careful and detailed supervision on the part of the faculty advers.

Faculty members of Olympia high usually take time off from their busy schedule of teaching classes and advising many extra-curricular activities to relax and enjoy themselves at teachers' functions, and this year was no exception.

On a September Sunday a picnic was held at the home of Mrs. Alma Bratton. Here many teachers enjoyed a day of swimming and boating. This was so successful that the faculty decided to have another picnic instead of the traditional dinner. The picnic was to have been held in the latter part of May.

Semester exam time is a busy one for students and teachers alike. After tests are over, however, the students get a day's vacation while faculty members correct tests and mark report cards. These tasks are brightened each time by a teachers' get-together where cake and coffee are served.

But back to the daily grind, here are the O.H.S. teachers and the classes they teach:

1950 Olympiad

On the top deck of the '50 Olympiad buckboard was Edeane Sharp, editor, spearheading her staff to new and greater heights. A great deal of the burden of publishing this yearbook fell on Edeane, but she worked unselfishly with her staff to make the book a success.

The '50 pioneers were greatly handicapped the first semester with a staff of only five students and the faculty adviser, Ernest F. Anderson. They were: Edeane, Virginia Cravens, associate editor; Dick Swanson, art editor; and Jean McKay, senior section editor with Shirley Easton, assistant.

Second semester the Olympiad staff was enhanced by many aspiring students from the beginning journalism class. These students were all eager to help in the production of the Olympiad and spent many long hours after school writing copy and mounting pictures. Second semester staff appointments were Barbara Straight, copy editor; Darlene Mumby and Judy Spargur, staff. Others writing copy were Shirley Easton, Jean McKay, Edeane Sharp, Joyce Hershey, Carol Fleming and Virginia Cravens. Denny Peterson took over as sports editor with Boxie Crewdson, Bob Carr, Tom Goldenberger and John Alexander assisting.

Although her main job was to support the editor, Virginia Cravens aided all departments with her three years of annual experience. Barbara Straight demonstrated her versatility by not only writing and checking copy but by drawing all the "bugs" for this year's annual. These "bugs," or theme sketches, are scattered throughout the book to add variety and help to carry out the theme. Barbara designed three section pages, while Dick Swanson, art editor, was responsible for the remaining three section pages, end sheets and the cover design.

Special tribute should be paid those non-journalism students who gave their time to work after school mounting pictures. The helpers were Joyce Guse, Donna Voegelein, Helen McKay and Clara Campanile.

Keeping a watchful eye on the annual budget and maintaining a balanced ledger was the duty of Marjorie Lindholm, business manager and her assistant, Marilyn Miller. Fourteen pages of ads were sold under the direction of Richard Rice, advertising manager, and his staff, Alonzo Fortin and Mary Kay Haydeen.

Portrait and commercial photographers for this year's annual were Mr. and Mrs. Carl DeMaris. The annual staff was fortunate in having a student photographer such as Jerry Craig, who took many of the student life pictures and shots of numerous school activities. A number of pictures used the state capitol group, across the street from the school, as a backdrop. The Olympiad engraving was done by the Artcraft Engraving and Electrotype Company of Seattle; cover by the S. K. Smith Company, Chicago, Illinois; and paper stock was from Zellerback Paper Co., Seattle. Printing was done by Warren's Quick Print.

The Olympus

In spite of all the difficulties encountered this year, The Olympus came through in true pioneer spirit. To Carol Fleming, editor, fell the responsibility of seeing that the paper came out on schedule, which is no small task in a school of some 1200 students. Adviser for The Olympus was Ernest Anderson.

Mary Ann Garowski took over the business management end of the paper while Barbara Crout, as advertising manager, saw to it that enough ads were secured to keep the paper going. To see that all 1800 copies of each edition were distributed was the job of Alex Crewdson, circulation manager.

Filling other positions on the staff were: Marty Schwellenbach, associate editor; Joyce Hershey, news editor; Pat Brenner, copy editor; Charles Cissna, sports editor; Joel Gould, morgue director; and Norma Veek, exchange editor.

Along with the change in semester also came the change in staff positions. Once more Carol Fleming was chosen editor. Joyce Hershey was named associate editor. Barbara Crout and Mary Ann Garowski remained as advertising manager and business manager respectively. News editor was Pat Brenner, Karen Shay, copy editor; Marilyn Armstrong, feature editor; Nathan Clifford, sports editor; John Alexander, morgue director; Tom Hartley, circulation manager; and Carol Chapman, exchange editor.

Highlighting the Journalism schedule for '49-50 was the Journalism banquet, October 26, which was sponsored by the Journalism classes. A martime theme was carried out in the decorations and program. Master of ceremonies for the evening was Alex Crewdson. Quill and Scroll initiates provided the program.

After the banquet Quill and Scroll club held their initiation ceremonies. Those initiated were: Marty Schwellenbach, The Olympus news editor; Charles Cissna, The

In March five members of The Olympus staff treked to the University of Washington for a Journalism conference, the Pacific Slope Press Association. Delegates from Olympia high school were Carol Fleming, Karen Shay, Joyce Hershey, Nathan Clifford and Denny Peterson. They were accompanied by Mr. Anderson, who gave a talk on advertising.

At the beginning of the second semester two more people were pledged to Quill and Scroll. They were Joyce Hershey and Lelia Beach. New officers were elected at this time also. They were: Charles Cissna, president; Marty Schwellenbach, vice president; Edeane Sharp, secretary, and Pat Brenner, treasurer. Outgoing officers were Beverlee Haxton, president; Carol Fleming, vice president; Charlotte Guffey, secretary; and Margie Lindholm, treasurer.

Final event on the Journalism calendar was the Quill and Scroll banquet May 16. This year all present and past members of journalism were invited to attend this banquet. Master of ceremonies was Charles Cissna. The last and final initiation of Quill and Scroll members was held at this banquet. Those initiated were Barbara Straight, Olympiad copy editor; Freddie Paulson, The Olympus associate business manager; Jean McKay, Olympiad senior section editor; Marilyn Armstrong, The Olympus feature editor; Denny Peterson, Olympiad sports editor.

The Show Goes On

With the spirit of the pioneers themselves, the Olympia high school drama students, under the direction of Miss Erma Williams, produced "Kind Lady," a melodrama by Edward Chodorov. The play was presented December 2 and 3.

Concerned with a wealthy old maid kept prisoner in her own home by a deceiving confidence man and his ring, the three-act play concludes with a puzzling climax which leaves the audience to draw their own conclusions.

Marilyn Armstrong and Jackie Claypool assisted Miss Williams with the directing. Prompters were Phyllis Hardesty and Bill Kotick.

Backstage workers as committee chairmen were: Patty McNamara, personal properties; Barbara Straight and Charlotte Van Dyke, stage properties; Mickie Bjornsen, programs; Marty Schwellenbach, publicity; Donna Voegelein, tickets; Connie Coolidge, costumes. Make-up was by Mask and Dagger.

Not to be outdone by the drama students, 1950 broadcasting students went on the air daily with "Date With a Disc," a dedication program. Students from the high school sent in their record requests and they were played the following day.

Another production of the broadcasting classes was "High School Headlines" which went on the air on Thursdays. All the important events of the week were broadcast at that time

Immediately following this, "Sports Review" went on the air to keep fans "in the know" on Olympia high's athletic program and favorite athletes. This program was taken over entirely by Nathan Clifford, Bob Fouts, Ed Metcalf, Ivan Budd and Neil Farler. Miss Williams had trained them to write the scripts, direct and produce the broadcasts. The first, second and fourth period classes rotated in turn to go "on the air."

Those students who turned out for the plays did not include all drama students. In the course of the year, drama classes did short skits on poetic themes, abstract articles and enacted the habits and personalities of animals. In the second semester, they started work on make-up and then used their training when they did monologues. Graduating from monologues to Shakespearean scenes, they again made use of their training in diction and phonetics. As their final work for the year, the amateur actors wrote their 10-minute monogues and gave them for the class.

An Irish play minus the dialect was picked as the Junior-Senior play. May 19 and 20 "Far Off Hills" by Lennox Robinson was presented successfully with Miss Williams assisted by Patty McNamara and Darlene LeMay directing.

The plot of the three-act comedy revolves around two teenaged girls who think that one of their family's friends would be a "dote" if she would marry their blind father. They are not so concerned with their father's desires but would like to get out of the clutches of their domineering sister who wants to be a nun but feels responsible for her father.

Cast for the play included: Marilyn Armstrong, Mac Partlow, Charlotte Van Dyke, Janet Parsons, Joyce Hershey, Freddie Paulsen, Jim Caldwell, Boxie Crewdson, Russel Gruhlke and Gladys Madden.

Committee chairman were: Barbara Straight assisted by Mary Ann Top and Phyllis Hardesty, personal properties; Janet Holm assisted by Diane Hankins and Roy Strom, stage properties; Wayne Bloomingdale and Barbara Blomquist, costumes; Marilyn Armstrong and Arlene Wilson, publicity; Jackie Claypool, programs; Dana Van Gilder and Louise Anders, tickets.

With the close of Olympia's first 100 years, the O.H.S. drama and broadcasting students have given their city even more to be proud of. They are learning to carry on in the next century with modernized methods of communication and entertainment patterned after those of the past.

Starting the music season with the Christmas concert were the vocal groups of Olympia high school. The annual concert entitled "Santa Serenades," was given December 18, in the high school auditorium. Following the band numbers, the junior girls glee sang, "The Lullaby of Jesus" and "Prayer." Soloists for the mixed ensembles number, "Christmas Tide," were: Wayne Bloomingdale, Barbara Tillman, Phyllis Graham and Bernie Slaten. The number was directed by Phil Giles, student director.

The ever popular "Silent Night," "Here a Torch, Jeanette, Isabella" and "On That First Christmas Morning" were presented by the girls ensemble. The superior soprano voice of Phyllis Graham brought forth the notes of "Gesu Bambino" by Pietro Yon.

The advanced girls glee presented "Ave Maria" arranged by Rieggo and "Patapan" arranged by Wilson. The mixed chorus closed the program with "'Twas the Night Before Christmas" with soloists Phil Giles, Marilyn Brower, Phyllis Graham, Dorothy Kanzler, Betty Robbins and Joanne Anderson. The final number was the "Seraphic Song" with Marilyn Brower as alto soloist accompanied by Pat Stark on the violin.

General chairman was Betty Robbins. Assisting Betty were: Phil Giles, program chairman; Marilyn Brower, publicity chairman; Irene Gould, stage chairman; Shirley Simon, tickets chairman. Makeup, ushers and stage crew also were used to complete and establish the performance.

Songtimers

Mixed chorus officers for this year were: Phil Giles, senior, president; Phyllis Graham, senior, secretary-treasurer and Marilyn Isaacson, senior, librarian. Vocal managers were Marilyn Brower, senior and Nancy Donohoe, junior.

"Modern Minstrelsy" was the spirited title of the spring concert held March 10 in the Olympia high school auditorium. It was directed by Leslie H. Armstrong and Fred Schlichting as was the Christmas concert.

For the spring concert the advanced girls glee presented two numbers, "By the Bend of the River" and "Barn Dance." Bebe Skillman then presented her interpretation of "Three Bagetelles" and "Toccato," on the piano. "Peter Pan" and "Alice Blue Gown" were given by the girls ensemble with a tenor solo part by Wayne Bloomingdale on the latter piece. Members of the Mixed chorus then presented "O Softly Singing Lute" by Pilkington and "Music of Life" by Cain.

In the finale choral and instrumental groups combined to sing "Onward Christian Soldiers," "Mighty Fortress is Our God" and "America."

General chairman for the "Modern Minstrelsy" program was Shirley Simon. Assisting her were: Phyllis Graham, program chairman; Patty McNamara, publicity chairman; Tommiana Barnes, stage chairman. Mask and Dagger Club was responsible for make-up and the ushers and stage crew were used. Nancy Maschner was the maker and producer of the backdrop.

Olympia's centennial meant a lot more work and practice for members of the Mixed chorus. They sang "Washington Beloved" and the "National Anthem" in the chilly air at the opening ceremonies held on the capitol steps.

Late hours were not an unusual necessity to those who participated in the pageant May 5 and 6 at Stevens field. They also sang at the Easter sunrise services held at the capitol grounds this year.

A barber shop quartet which received recognition for its participation in the Centennial programs and assemblies was that composed of: Wayne Bloomingdale, Bernie Slaten, Bill Burch and Dick Koehler, all juniors. They also took part in an exchange assembly presented in Aberdeen.

This year's Southwest Washington music meet was held in the Olympia high school auditorium April 15. Out of nine superior ratings given, Olympia received four.

Solo and ensemble contest was held in Centralia March 25. Superior ratings went to Phyllis Graham, soprano; Karen Wilson, second soprano; Marilyn Brower, alto; and Al Carpenter, bass. Excellent ratings went to Robbie Robbins and Virginia Day, soprano; Don Swett, tenor, and Jim Agnew, bass.

"Swing yer partner," was the spirited pioneer call of Olympia history makers of 100 years ago. Once again the famous call was prominent May 1-7. Re-appearing as citizens of 100 years ago, Olympia residents marked their first centennial anniversary of the Capital city. Whiskers, long flowing dresses, bright colored plaid shirts, horses and buggies adorned "Streets of Long Ago."

The annual Christmas concert was presented by the Olympia high music department in the O.H.S. auditorium under the direction of Leslie H. Armstrong and Fred Schlichting. A large, gaily decorated Christmas tree with an equally large Santa Claus filled the atmosphere with Christmas cheer. The band played "The Vanished Army" by Alford.

Highlighting the evening was a soprano solo by Phyllis Graham, "Gesu Bambino" by Pietro Yon. She was accompanied by Emily Walters on the violin and Bebe Skillman at the piano.

"In Times of Stress," a seventeenth century Dutch tune by Valerius, was presented by the orchestra; also "Children's (Toy) Symphony," by Hayden. Betty Robbins was general chairman of the affair. Working under her management were Phil Giles, program; Alex Crewdson, make-up; Irene Gould, stage; Marilyn Brower, publicity; Shirley Simon, tickets.

Using "Modern Minstrelsy," as the theme, the music department delivered the annual spring concert March 10. A capacity crowd filled the auditorium to hear the chorus, band, orchestra and ensembles.

Closing the program, all instrumental and vocal groups joined for a grand finale. With a patriotic theme they presented "Onward Christian Soldiers," "America" and "A Mighty Fortress is Our God."

Taking charge of the concert was Shirley Simon, general chairman. Ably assisting her were Patty McNamara, publicity; Phyllis Graham, program; Tommiana Barnes, stage.

Topping the season of music was the fifth annual "Pop Concert," directed by Leslie H. Armstrong. The concert was presented in the O.H.S. auditorium in May.

This year the band has been very active. The annual "Pep Rally" marked the first introduction of the band of '49-'50. The band also entertained at all football and basketball games played at home.

Journeying from home, the band played and marched at Aberdeen for the Armistice Day football game and at Bellingham for the football game played Thanksgiving Day. At Seattle the band marched for three miles at the Christmas parade.

Olympia high school is proud of its music department and of Mr. Armstrong and Mr. Schlichting who have given Olympia a successful year of music.

Next on the O.H.S. social calendar was the second annual Big O ball, complete with referees, footballs and a halftime band. December 21 found both past and present high school students gathered around the huge Christmas tree in the middle of the gym at the Christmas Alumni dance.

Perhaps most noted for its exquisite decorations was the annual Junior-Senior ball held February 11. A large moon, shoe boat, and thousands of stars greatly helped to carry out the theme, "Wynken, Blynken, and Nod."

Multi-colored sea fish played host at the Girls club tolo which sponsored the theme, "Shipwreck." Prizes of the evening for the best costumes went to Mac Partlow, Betty Ann Williams, Patty McNamara, Jim Agnew and Frank Hartung.

Gay pastel shades of Spring provided the background for the May court at the May dance held April 29. Presiding over the dance were Queen Royal Mower and King Mac Partlow with their royal court. Bears Aim For Third Conquering Of Bellingham In Classic Windup

Both Bears, Red Raiders In Top Shape To Break 4-Year Series Deadlock

Football fans may witness one of the top non-championship games in the state with the undefeated, once tied Olympia Bears invading the opposition for the twice-beaten Bellingham Red Raiders. Game time is 12:30 o'clock Thanksgiving day, in Bellingham.

Bellingham, O.H.S. Have Even History

When the Olympia Bears meet the Bellingham Red Raiders in their annual Turkey day game tomorrow, it will be the fifth of their Thanksgiving day games. Game time is 12:30 p. m. at Hadsley field in Bellingham.

In the four games to date, each eleven has two contests won and as many lost. Bellingham captured the inaugural contest in '45 by blanking the Bears 7-0 in Bellingham. The Bears have gone undefeated in eight starts until they met the Red Raiders in the Turkey day affair. The Bellingham touchdown came when Jerry Blankenship passed to end Chuck Olsen, who is still catching the pigskin for the University of Washington. Although the Bears had gone undefeated thus far, they were outweighed 20 pounds per man in that game. Playing in Olympia, the Bruins spotted the series at one contest apiece the next year by edging the favored Red Raiders 14-7 in an upset victory. In season's play the Capital City eleven had won a pair of games while tasting defeat at the hands of Hoquiam, Aberdeen and Longview, conference champions.

With the series standing at a game apiece, the Red Raiders whitewashed the lowly Olympians in '46, 14-0 in the northern city. The Bears had been dumped by all foes in league play and won their only game of the grid campaign with a 7-6 victory over Shelton. Throughout the first period the Bruins held the touchdown-minded Red Raiders scoreless. In the second quarter the Bellingham eleven came to life and pushed over two quick touchdowns to put the game on ice for the Red Raiders.

In '48 the Bears tied the series for the second time by hammer-

Bellingham has defeated Hoquiam, Centralia and Shelton, but has been defeated by Aberdeen and Longview. The Red Raiders are one of the strongest teams in the conference and in the state. The Bellingham team is strong, rugged, tough and exceptionally fast.

The Olympia attack features the excellent quartering of Dean Caldwell, who has hit well over half of his passes and mixed them with hand-offs and pitch-outs. Along with Dean's arm the Bears possess the talented running of Mac Partlow, who is currently leading the conference in scoring with six romps to pay dirt. With the end-arounds of Partlow and junior Al Carpenter, the Bruins also have Larry Malloy and Tom Goldenberger to rip through tackle and guard.

Bears At Full Strength

When the Bears meet the Red Raiders tomorrow they will be at full strength with the returning of Bob Fouts, halfback, and fullback Herb Lindberg, who have missed action in the last four games.

After being idle last Friday, the Red Raiders should have recovered from their injuries and be in top

With fancy kicks and a bit of tumbling the majorettes of Olympia high school provided half-time entertainment for athletic events and led the band this year. Pictured on the opposite page, they are, left to right, Lora Holland, Dee Holland, Patty McNamara, drum major; Delores Plamondon, head majorette; Marilyn Segle.

Patty's job was to lead the band through its many intricate formations and to keep the band members in step. She performed this duty in all parades and at the football games.

Delores and her staff of three girls did a great many new things this year, such as tricky steps, new head bands for basketball season to replace the larger hats of football season, and even taking tap lessons for new routines.

Lora Holland, Delores Plamondon, and Marilyn Segle entered the majorette contest sponsored annually by the Centralia Junior college. The event took place in Centralia, March 11. Delores, a senior, received first prize medal competing against 30 other girls in the Southwest Washington division. Lora Holland, junior, took fourth place to bring home two winners.

Building for the future is the term for the Bruins. With a group of talented juniors and sophomores on most of the Bruin athletic squads, Olympians are looking to the future. Football provided the most thrills for O.H.S. fans, as the team swept through the season undefeated. Sports writers rated the Bruins as the fourth best high school team in state competition. Basketball was not as heartening; the Bears had a won nine and lost five record. They sorely missed the height of last year's squad, but a trio of junior centers should paint a different picture for Olympia casaba fans in the future.

Warmer weather was helping improve the Spring Sports program. Baseball mentor M. W. Rockey's team was undefeated at the annual springing time. Tracksters were preparing for the sub-district meet in Centralia. The minor sports, golf and tennis, were also camping across on the win side of the ledger. All considered, it was a good season for athletes from William Winlock Miller high.

Highly successful in his second season at coaching, Roy E. Carlson is judged as one of the better coaches in high school football circles. Mr. Carlson teamed with his two assistants, Hank Melusky and Adolf Larson, in producing the exceptionally fine Bruin team. The Bruins made up in determination and intestinal fortitude for what they lacked in experience. Line coach Larson started work with only one first stringer from the '48 team. Around him he used subs from the same group, cub players, and a few sophomores up from the junior high ranks. These players were molded into a smooth working team, to spearhead the attacks of the talented Bear backfield.

Height and experience were what the O.H.S. cage team sorely needed. Only three players with past varsity experience greeted Mr. Rockey for the start of basketball turnouts. None of these had much in the way of stratospheric proportions and their experience couldn't make up the difference. The team showed a lot of promise at times, but they are entered in a league which has many good teams.

Tracksters, under the auspices of Mr. Larson, had a record of three wins and two losses in their league schedule. Some surprizes greeted Mr. Larson with the coming of the first track meets. He was awed at how well his team showed against the stiff competition from the Harbor city's cinder squad. The six lettermen he had to work with showed well. Weak in the field events the Bears improved steadily under the coaching of Larson and his assistant, Roy Carlson. For the first year a freshman squad was formed, and turned out along with the varsity. Those frosh won their two meets and will help considerably in forging better Bear track teams.

A strong pitching staff was greatly responsible for the baseball success of Olympia's diamondmen. The team was an undefeated one as the Olympiad went to press. They defeated most of their opponents by wide margins in contests to date.

Minor sports, golf, under Hank Melusky and tennis, coached by Ash Walker, occupied a great deal of attention by ports fans. Both these groups put out good teams, and everyone wants to see a winner.

Champions

In just two years as head football coach of Olympia high school, Roy E. Carlson built the wagon road that carried the Bruin pioneers from an unnoticed pigskin machine to one of the foremost grid powers in the state. Undefeated and with only a tie on the dark side of the ledger, the Bears were ranked fourth in state-wide competition. This was a fitting tribute to the manner in which the Olympia coaching staff groomed the squad on the intricacies of the T-formation.

Line mentor, Adolf Larson, had to depend on much green material to fill the important line spots especially at tackle and center where not a single letterman served. The Bruins had enough good ends for two championship teams this year. Some credit for this should be given to Hank Melusky, new end coach, who served his initial year in the coaching profession with the Olympians.

Most of the credit, however, has to be given to the boys who did the job. These lettermen are: Seniors—Don Blocher, Eli Yates, Jim Spellman, tackles, who played mostly on defense. Ken Franks, only second year man at guard, was chosen for the all-conference team. Ivan Budd, Fred Crowe and Jim Caldwell were ends. Jim was chosen on the all-conference team and was selected to play in the State vs. City game next September. Earl Pilgrim and Larry Malloy were fullbacks. Mac Partlow, Tom Goldenberger and Nathan Clifford, were halfbacks. Mac was the leading Bear scorer and an all-conference choice. Dean Rockey, quarterback, was all-conference choice, all-state, and honorable mention high school all-American.

Junior letter winners include Neil Muller and Chuck Mitchell, Neil receiving honorable mention for the all-conference team. Dave Bjorkland, Frank Hartung and Bill Burch were tackles. Don Sauls and Wane Dunkelberger were guards, Wayne Dunkelberger were guards, Wayne winning all-conference mention. Jack Lindskog and Mike Hovis were centers, Jack being unanimous choice for all-conference honors. John Birkett and Herb Lindberg were fullbacks, John doing all the punting on the squad. Al Carpenter, Bob Fouts and Gil Long were halfbacks.

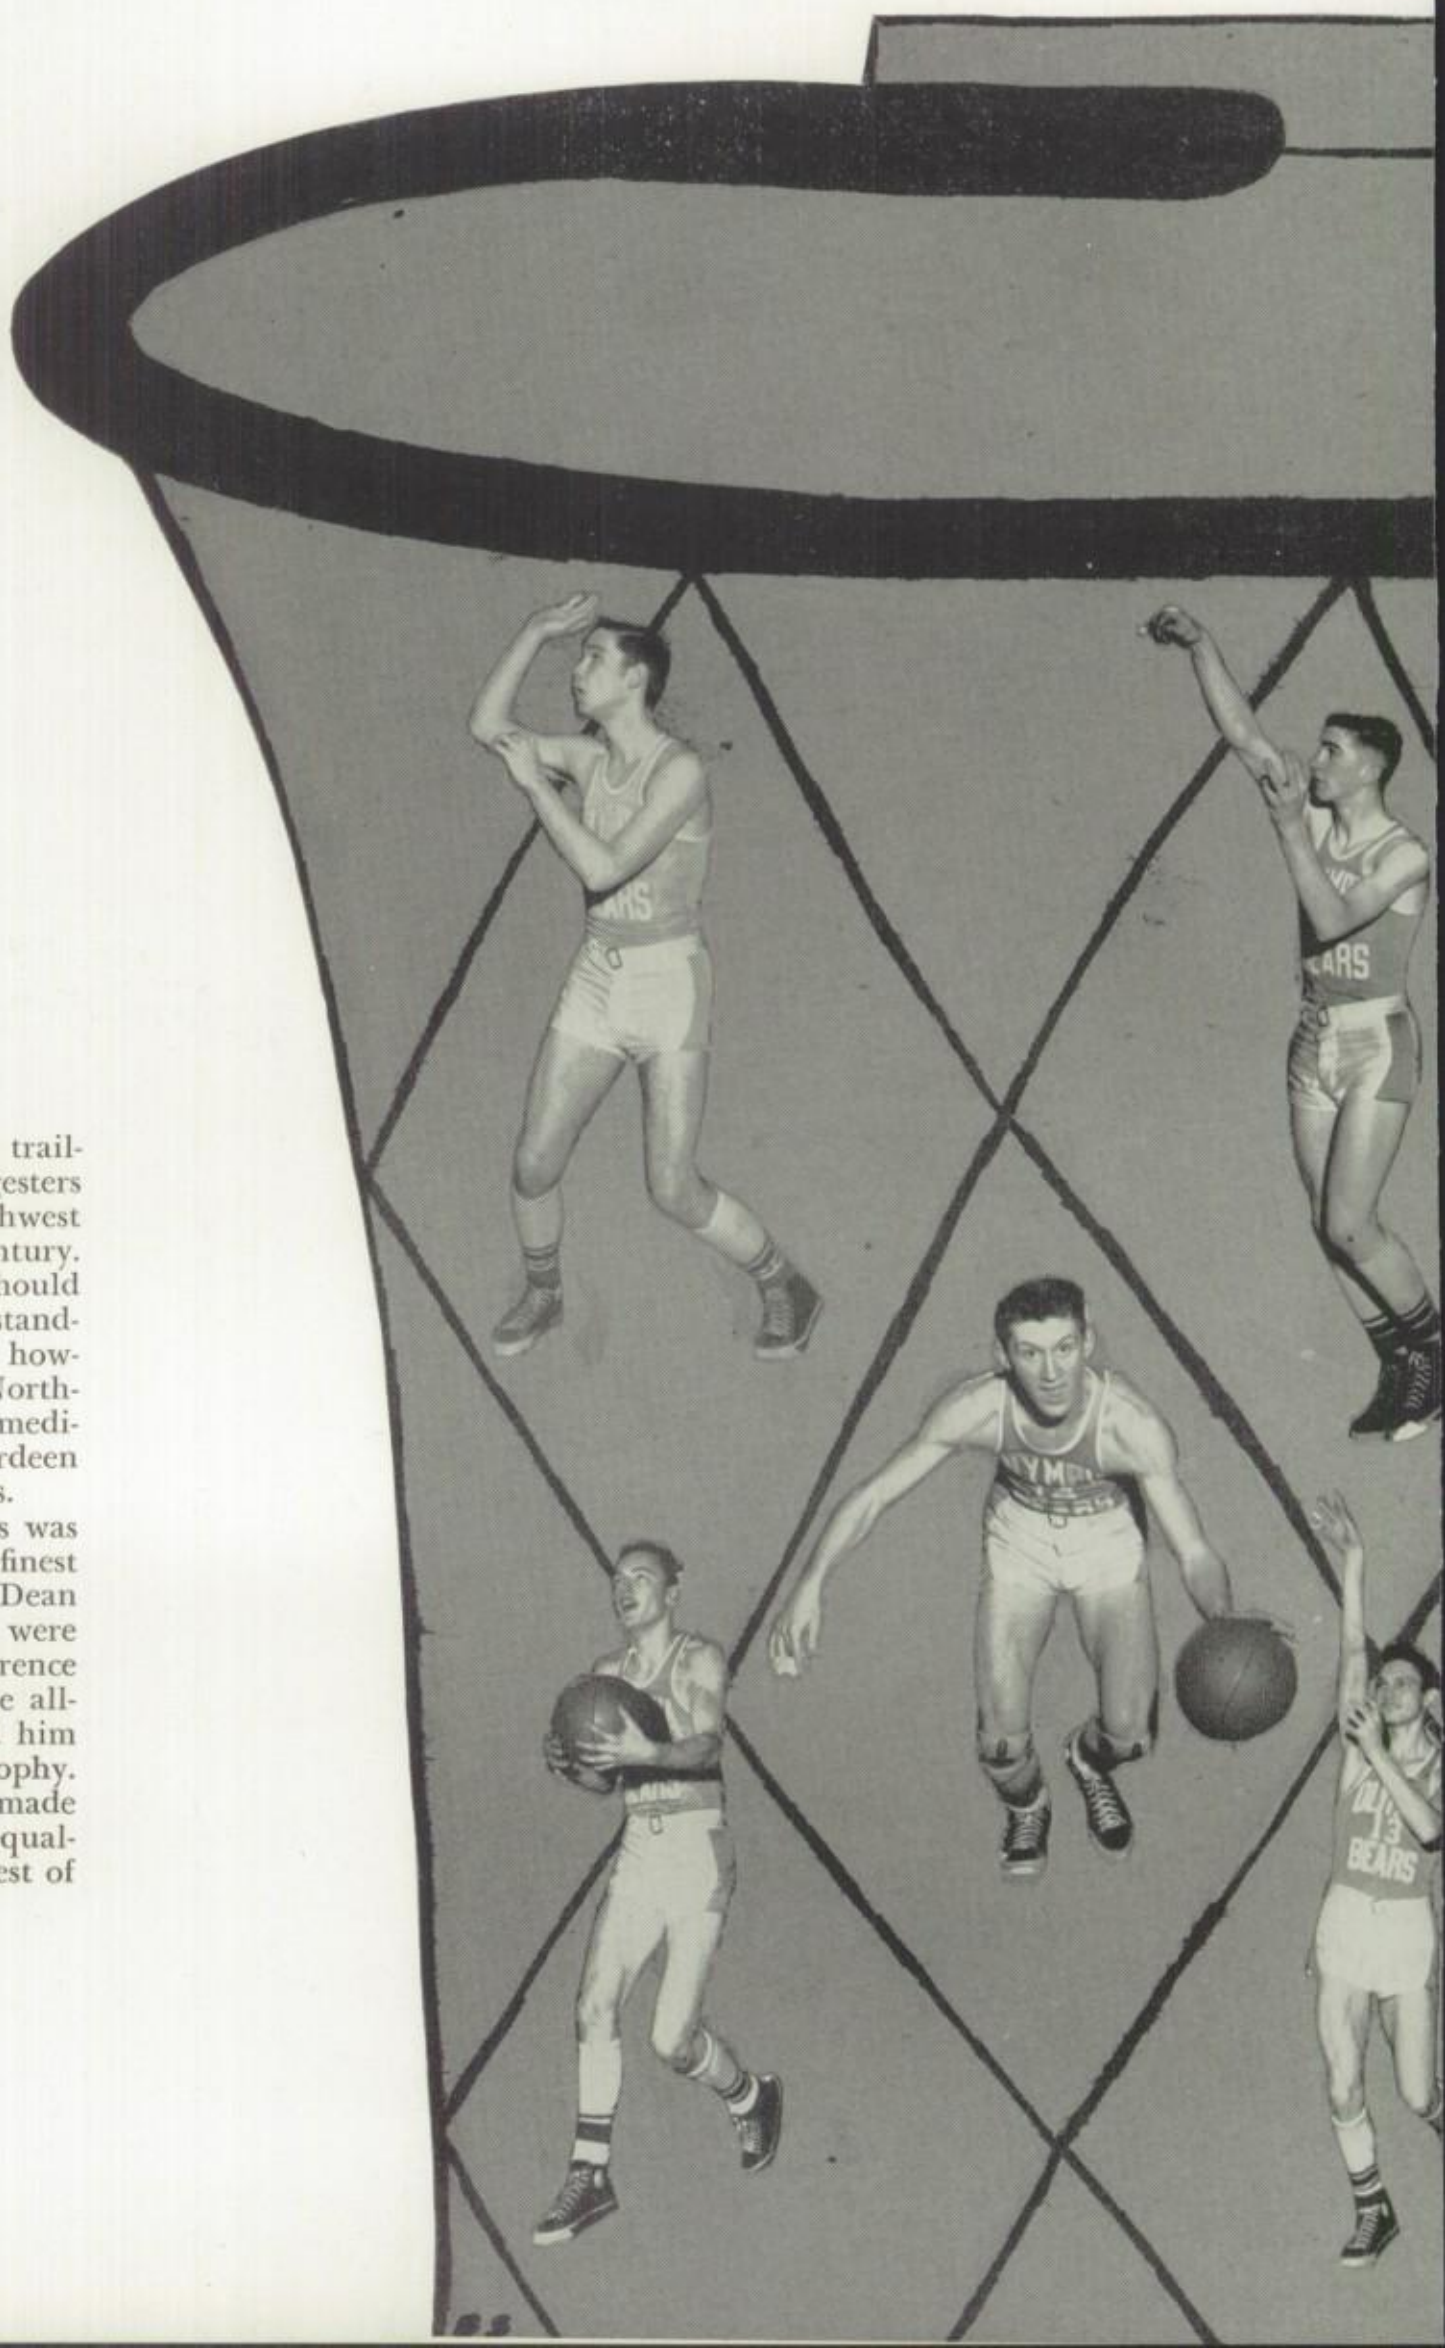
Brui



Coach M. W. Rockey has been trailblazing with his quintet of cagesters about the maplewoods of Southwest Washington for a quarter of a century. It would be fitting that the Bears should highlight the 25 years with an outstanding season. This wasn't the case, however. Out of the five teams in the Northern Division the Bears ended in a mediocre third place headed by the Aberdeen Bobcats and the Hoquiam Grizzlies.

The 1950 edition of the Bruins was weak in spots but it had two of the finest basketball players in the state, Dean Rockey and Mac Partlow. Both were unanimous choices on the all-conference five. Dean was also selected on the all-state team; his teammates honored him with the Y's Mens Inspirational trophy. Dean at forward and Mac at guard made a player combination, possibly, unequaled in Olympia high history. The rest of

The team was small in stature, but made up for size in its exceptional speed and deadly hoop shooting accuracy. During conference play they were undefeated, and lost only one post-season game to the Bremerton Wildkittens. This team, along with the six returning lettermen from the varsity, should provide varsity mentor Chick Rockey with a fine team for next year.

Diamondeers

America's greatest pastime, baseball, began at Olympia high school this season with only six returning lettermen on hand for Coach M. W. Rockey. With three lettermen being pitchers, Coach Rockey had to pick the majority of his squad from unexperienced players, in baseball language, rookies.

In a meeting held last fall between coaches and league officials, it was voted to drop Shelton and Chehalis from the Olympia-Centralia schedule. They also admitted Aberdeen and Hoquiam to round out the foursome.

This year the Olympia diamondmen and the Aberdeen Bobcats were knotted for the league's lead with two wins in as many starts. The Bears posted a victory in the conference opener by thumping the visiting Centralia Tigers 7-2 behind the brilliant hurling of veteran Bruin southpaw Toby Larson.

Capturing their second tilt of the conference behind the 3 hit pitching of Sketer Ellis, ace right hander, the Rockeymen dropped Hoquiam 9-1 in the Harbor city. In non-conference games the undefeated Olympia Bears have past wins over Yelm, Bellarmine, St. Martins' and Tenino high schools. The Bruins dropped Yelm 11-0 and 4-2 to open the season. Then they bested Bellarmine of Tacoma 7-5, Tenino 15-3, and ran away from St. Martins' 16-1.

Returning lettermen on the Bruin nine were: Sketer Ellis, senior, outfielder and pitcher; Dean Rockey, senior, first baseman; Walt Willows, senior, shortstop; Willie Carr, senior, out fielder and pitcher; Ed Ackelson, senior, outfielder; and Toby Larson, junior, hurler.

Leading the Bruin stickmen this year were Ed Ackelson and Willie Carr who were hitting at a clip well over 500. Walt Willows and Dean Rockey helped the Bruins with their big sticks and run-batted-in totals.

Throughout the season Coach Rockey went along with the following line-up: Ackelson leading off and playing center field; Ellis at second and either pitching or playing right field; McClary playing third and hitting in the number three spot; Rockey at first base and hitting clean-up; Willie Carr playing left field or pitching in the number five spot; Lindskog at the keystone hitting sixth; Willows at shortstop hitting seven; Larson pitching and batting eighth and John Birkett catching and hitting last. When Larson hurled, Long would be in the right field garden.

Sporting a well-rounded squad that captured at least one first in every event, the Olympia thinclads racked up three wins in five meets.

From a record number of 90 aspirants that turned out this year only six were lettermen. Before this squad was rounded into shape they were dropped by a veteran Hoquiam aggregation 75-38. Olympia gathered only one first place in this meet; on the basis of Thor Lund's 5:01.3 mile.

The Bruin brigade got into the win column with a 66-47 win over the once-powerful Centralia Tigers. Nathan Clifford was the only double winner for the Bears, taking the 100 and 220. He repeated these double victories in the next three meets.

Aberdeen's Bobcats administered the second bop to the Olympia flying "O's" 66-47. The Bears captured five out of 13 firsts and failed to place in only one event. Clifford was the outstanding competitior of the day, the only double winner, taking the 100 in 10.4 and 220 in 24.5. Ivan Budd showed well with a 54.2 quarter mile.

The Bruins recovered in fine style to smash the Longview Lumberjacks 76-37. The Olympia varsity scored with 12 firsts out of a possible 13. Harlan Sachs won the high hurdles in the fine time of 16.5.

The Blue and White thinclads swamped a game Montesano squad 80-32 for their third victory. Three Olympians were double winners that day: Clifford in the 100 and 220 yard dashes; Crowe, high and low hurdles and Dunkelberger, the shotput and discus. Thor Lund's time of 4:45.8 in the mile marathon was outstanding also.

Consistent point collectors for the Bruins this year include returning lettermen Nathan Clifford, Ivan Budd, Denny Peterson, Fred Crowe, Wayne Dunkelberger and Thor Lund. Other tally seekers were Earl Pilgrim, Pat Brown, Harlan Sachs, Sam Hunter, Dale Becker, Vern Martin, Mike Hovis and David Barker.

Three Bears and the relay team, Crowe, Budd, Peterson and Clifford, had the top times in the Southwest. Nathan Clifford is tops in the 100 with a 10.4 mark. Denny Peterson scored in the low hurdles with a timing of 24.8. Ivan Budd's 54.2 in the 440 is head of that department and the relay quartet's 1.35 has weathered the storm so far.

The sub-district meet and then the district meet gave several Olympia men the opportunity to qualify for the state meet in Pullman.

Tennis

Olympia high school's improved tennis team took to the courts this spring. The Bears this season, coached by Ashfield Walker, showed power by winning half their games up to the time the Olympiad went to press.

The O.H.S. netmen started the season with two returning lettermen from O.H.S. and one transfer from Seattle, Clark Dowling. The tennis team began the year with new blue and white uniforms.

Scoring in the different games went as follows: Port Angeles 0—Olympia 7, Olympia 0, and Lincoln 3—Olympia 2. The Bears played these teams once again before the season ended.

Olympia's tennis team will lose two of its first five lettermen this year, but will have the return of Tom Harding, number one man and two-year lettermen Lee Kisor and Bob Stowell, doubles partners. The tennis team will be able to draw from many hopeful letter winners in the forthcoming year.

Golf

With many '49 golfers dropped from this year's roster, Olympia high's golf team has been considerably inexperienced. The boys have shown improvement right along, however, and the present divot-diggers should develop into a strong team for next year, according to their coach, Hank Melusky. Mr. Melusky is trying his hand at coaching O.H.S. golf for the first time this season.

Dick Hall and Louie Lofgren have been riding together as top men since both have turned in low scores in match play. Dick will be leaving the Olympia turf-flingers, but Louie still has another year to swing the clubs.

Though Olympia golfers have been without too much experience, they have fared pretty well in their first six matches. Olympia first downed Aberdeen 12½-2½. They went on to take the Hoquiam Grizzlies 11-4. Centralia proved too much for the Bears by putting over a score of 6-9. Twice beaten by a strong Stadium group, Olympia came out on the bottom of a 14½-½ score and a 14-1 tally. The heartbreaker of Coach Melusky's teemen was the match with Bremerton which ended 8-7 for the Wildcats.

Braving the dangers of the ominous unknown, Olympians' pioneer grandfathers broke through the wilderness and settled the city of Olympia.

Unlike the pioneers of previous years, G.A.A. members are able to take part in many events. Basketball, volleyball, badminton, swimming and bowling are among the sports in which the Girls athletic association of Olympia high participate. These activities were under the direction of Miss Mable Keck first semester and Mrs. Frances Amundson second semester.

Presiding over G.A.A. for '49-'50 was Janice Lobe, junior. Janice has spent three years with G.A.A. and has won many honors such as G.A.A. letter, G.A.A. certificate and G.A.A. "W." Vice president of G.A.A. was June Chambers, and Marlene Layton, secretary and historian. Sports heads were: Sally Gregory, basketball; Sally Patterson, baseball; Pat Liebe, volleyball; Donna Zink, minor sports; Pat Liebe, swimming; Evelyn Bickers, bowling.

G.A.A. annual banquet was held in May with games and awards made. Letters were received by each member who earned sufficient points. Outgoing officers stepped down from their positions and gave their offices to the new officers for the coming year.

University of Washington was the location of the annual play day held in May. Five girls from Olympia high attended the affair. Those attending were Marlene Layton, Lorraine Patterson, Janice Lobe, Joan LaLone and Joan Gunstone. The alternative for the trip was Joan McLelland. Representatives from Olympia reported a successful day of recreation and increased knowledge of the university.

The sports-minded girls began the year with a course in lifesaving. Twenty girls turned out for the event with Pat Liebe, junior, and three-year member of G.A.A., instructing the course. Mrs. Frances Kent was the adviser.

Bowling classes were held after school. Both new bowling students and experienced bowlers played together in a tournament. Captain of the winning team was Janice Lobe. Outstanding in the field of bowling were Donna Holt, Louise Gilliland and Lorraine Patterson.

GIRLS CLUB

Pressing ever onward the Girls club pioneers of Olympia high school completed another year of activities and service, ably assisted by Miss Elizabeth Crockett, dean of girls, and Miss Nara Perniconi, assistant Girls club adviser.

To begin the year, the annual Big Sister party was held September 16. Betty Ann Williams, friendship chairman, was in charge of the event. Next on the schedule was the Father-Daughter banquet held November 10 with football as the theme. General chairman for the affair was Clara Campanile. Other committee heads working with Clara were Marilyn Armstrong, publicity; Charlotte Guffey and Barbara Straight, decorations; Patty McNamara, programs; Louise Anders and Joanne Anderson, booklet; Joyce Sisson, hostess; Ann Elliot, serving; Emily Walters, clean-up; Jean McKay, tickets; Marsha Kast, invitations and Janet Holm, dining room.

With "Shipwrecked on a Desert Island" as the theme, the Girls club sponsored the All-high tolo March 31. The social committee was in charge of the decorations with the junior and senior girls working on the programs for the dance.

A Centennial theme was used for the Girls club Mothers tea given April 21 for both the girls' and boys' mothers. General chairman of the tea was Clara Campanile assisted by Marilyn Armstrong, publicity; Dana Van Gilder, general arrangements; Betty Ann Williams, refreshments; Tommiana Barnes and Helen McKay, corsages; Patty McNamara, program; Carol Bennet, tickets; Harriet Krier, decorations; Louise Anders and Marsha Kast, serving and Robbie Robbins, clean-up.

The Girls Auxiliary members have also spent a busy year with their many activities for the sophomore and freshman girls. Miss Lily Everton was adviser. Their Mothers tea highlighted the year's festivities. It was held December 9 in the auditorium and cafeteria. The theme for the tea was "Christmas Around the World." Members of the program committee were: Judy Campbell, Barbara Gallucci, Charlotte Whisler, Nancy Bratton, Joan Bunker, Margo Million, Betty Gordon and Gail Lehman.

BOYS CLUB

Charging through the wilderness, the Boys club of Olympia high school marched onward to complete the school year of '49 and '50.

The Board of Control is the directing body of Boys club. It is in charge of administration and general policies of the club.

There are nine committees under the Board of Control. The first of these is the program committee. Its job is to plan Boys club programs, mixers and social events. The second committee, service, plans service projects for Boys club, appoints special service committees, and supervises service projects. One of the special appointments this year was the sportmanship committee. It proved to be an important and necessary committee for sports events. In charge of intramural basketball was the intramural committee. The boys of O.H.S. enjoyed hobbies, intramural sports, and activities planned by this committee.

The Knights of the Oyster and the Usher committee handle preparations and supervision of all games, plays, concerts and dances. The House and Grounds committee is another important one. It recruits and supervises the clean-up squad and inspects buildings, grounds, and vicinity. Any needed repairs are reported. The Public Address crew handles public address apparatus at games, plays, concerts and dances. It also operates the P.A. booth in the office daily.

The publicity committee does just what the name implies, publicizes Boys club events and projects. It helps with A.S.B. publicity, too. Last, but not least, is the Red Cross. It works with Girls club in planning and promoting Junior Red Cross activities and campaigns.

Climaxing the year's merry-making was Dads night, held April 21 at the high school. The committee heads in charge of the gala affair were: Ways and means, Jerry Force; exhibit and display, Harry Foster; tickets, Ed Ackelson; program, Dave Chilson, Ivan Budd; refreshments, Dick Swanson; publicity, Charles Cissna; clean-up, Dave McClary; and invitations, Whitney Wilson.

These boys have worked hard to achieve their purposes: to promote friendliness; maintain a higher moral, physical, and intellectual standard among boys of Olympia high.

CLUBS

Entertainment in the form of noon movies are the results of the projection crew. Small admission fees result in new equipment and new movies. This crew is also responsible for the movies and slides given in United States history and socio-economics classes.

The task of seeing that the equipment was in good shape and kept repaired, and assigning the men for responsibility of running movies was the job of manager Bob McHugh, senior. Assisting him was Dick Huntly, co-manager. Adviser of the projection crew was R. P. Burke.

In 1922 a new club, then called the "Rooter" club, came into existence. Assuming the new name of Knights of the Oyster in 1923, the club pledged itself to serve Olympia high school, its clubs and organizations. Varied duties have been theirs including the keeping of Pepper, the Olympia high mascot. With Ashfield Walker as adviser the club still assumes the 22-year-old task of ushering pioneer fans at all home sports contests.

Corresponding with young people in foreign lands and other states is the main project of the Correspondence club. This club was started in 1936 under the direction of Miss Alma Olson and belongs to the Student Forum of International Relations. During the last war it adopted a Polish war orphan who was recently re-united with his parents. This Christmas it sent $10 to the Foster Parents Plan for aiding European children.

Fifth row—Jamison, Metcalf, Olson, O'Leary, Esterly, Miss Olsen, adviser. Top, Jensen.

Stage crew members fulfill a very necessary service to Olympia high school. This crew of pioneers, under the direction of John W. Fuller, is responsible for the building and erecting of the many stage sets needed for the play presentations and assemblies. Head of the stage crew this year, appointed by Mr. Fuller, is John Blenkhorn, junior. Lighting is another problem which the crew has to face. All lighting effects for concerts and programs of all kinds are theirs to cope with.

Another of the busy crews giving service to the high school is the projection crew. Noon movies would not be shown if it were not for these boys. The boys on the crew are advised by Ray P. Burke. Movies given during class periods such as United States history and social economics are also the work of the buckskin hunters of pictorial education and amusement.

It is undeterminable just when library assistants came into existence, but in 1939 they first received acknowledgment in the Olympia high school annual. Needless to say, they have been used for at least 25 years. It is up to these 12 pioneers of American literature to circulate the books to the students. They also open the mail, keep the library in order, file the books and give any general information needed. Under the capable direction of Miss Louise Montgomery, high school librarian, the library assistants perform a beneficial school service.

One of the most recent classes to be included in the schedule of many Olympia high school scholars is the merchandising class. It is conducted by Wayne Schollenberger, who also has charge of the Public Address crew. This class has formed a club which is appropriately called the Merchandising club. It was formed in 1949 and is part of the nation wide club for students participation in this field of work. It promotes a better understanding between student and employer and enables the student to enlarge his or her background in merchandising.

Pictured below, top left, is the stage crew. Left to right: First row—Blenkhorn, Dalebout, Howe. Back row—Underwood, Craig. Top right are the library assistants. First row—West, Farler, York, Patterson, David, Simon. Second row—Bach, McColman, Columbo, Rinehart, Cleveland, Miss Montgomery, adviser. In the bottom picture is the merchandising club. Second row—Bellis, Curtarelli, Weatherbie, Rotter, Nunez, Heikes, Turner, Sweeny, Griswold, Stuart, Prang, Collins, Turner.

Elected as first semester officers to the T-Square club of Olympia high school were Rex Comstock, senior, president; Lawrence Dennis, junior, vice president; Norma Darling, senior, secretary and Wayne McVey, junior, treasurer. Advertisement by posters and signs of the coming plays, sports and concerts is done by this club. Advised by Mr. M. W. McLeod, they stimulate interest in the various types of drafting, sponsor trips and industrial programs. The members of this club built the fine scale model of the Crosby home located in Tumwater for the Olympia Historical society. This model was displayed in the "Pioneer's Day" parade given May 3.

Wayne McVey, junior, was elected to the presidency for the second semester. Under him were Lawrence Dennis, junior, vice president; Norma Darling, senior, secretary; and Jim Robinson, junior, treasurer. This club was also responsible for the displays at Dad's night held April 23 in the gym. Other organizations see to it that the T-Square club is kept busy by making requests for posters, signs and such.

Four Olympia high school students attended the fifth state meeting of the Future Homemakers of America. The girls attending the convention, held at Washington State college, were Charlotte Whisler, Virginia Willis, Shirley Busching, and Carol Jenkins. The girls presented a musical number entitled, "My Hero."

Presidents of Mrs. Marie Vandalls' Home economics classes for second semester were: Nancy Bratton, Sharon Todd, Dorothy Orstad, Joyce Anders, and Sally Patterson. Mrs. Martha Jone's presidents were: Barbara Byrd and Gerry Hagen. Presiding in Miss Lillian Green's classes were: Mary Nelson, Carol Fisk, and Leone Moore.

Mrs. Martha Jones, home economics teacher, is now an author. An article having to do with the practical uses of sewing taught in schools was printed in the January issue of the "Practical Home Economics."

Attending the Pacific Region convention from Olympia high school was Gerry Gross. The convention lasted 8 days and was held at Santa Barbara, California. There were attendants from Hawaii. Its purpose was to set up a calendar for the coming year.

Maintaining a public address system for the stockade of Olympia high school is one of the many duties of the P.A. crew. This crew consists of eight boys headed by Jerry Force with Wayne Schollenberger as adviser. This group is responsible for the morning and emergency bulletins, not excluding the "Please send John Doe to the office." Assemblies would be lost without the public address crew, as would the Olympia high school gym and Stevens field during their respective sports seasons. In case one would like to know to whom these voices belong, they are: first period, Wally Budsberg; second period, Art Watkins; third period, Melvin Collins; both fourth periods, Layden Walsh, Ken Spiller; fifth period, Ronald Nielson, and sixth period, Orval Bingham. These boys comprise one of the necessary crews that help keep Olympia high school one of the best in the eyes of all Olympians.

Foreign Language council consists of the adviser and one member of each foreign language club. Head adviser is R. C. Anderson, also Spanish club adviser. Main event of the year for the council is the language banquet given annually and held in the cafeteria. The program was given March 15 with the "Unsacred Cow" as a means of travel. It was piloted to the different lands by Charles Cissna.

On reaching home base the decision of the judges was awaited by all. The judges: Herb Challen, Maurice Crowley and Harold Murphy, chose the colorful costumes of the Latin club for first place in clothing, with the French club membrs coming in second. Top honors for decorations was taken by the Spanish club. Highlights of the show were the pantomimes given by Mart Liikane from Astonia.

Committee chairmen for the banquet were as follows: Mildred Chambers and Jim Hogenson, Spanish; Jim Richards, Latin; Robbie Robbins, French, program chairman.

Carefully and safely guiding students across the busy streets were the school boy patrols. Larry Suelze held the position as captain for the first semester. Dean "Happy" Highland attained the position as second semester captain.

The Girls League headed by Pat McNulty had its annual Mothers tea. The mothers were honored by a skit and style show sponsored by girls from the home economic classes. The girls modeled garments which they had made in sewing class.

To acquaint incoming freshmen and other new pupils with life at Olympia high school, the annual New Students' Day assembly was held before school started. The assembly was given by members of the coming junior class. It portrayed incidents such as locker day and the first day of school in a comical manner. A tour of the school was conducted and newcomers were able to learn about various activities.

This year's freshmen proved themselves capable of exploring successfully the unknowns of high school. Leaders who helped the pioneering frosh over the unfamiliar path were: Gary Shugarts, president; Skip Olson, vice president; Patsy Wagner, secretary-treasurer; Jack Nunez, yell leader; Sherry Arnold and Sharon Todd, Girls auxiliary representatives. Miss Margaret Moran and Robert Summers, class advisers, offered much assistance throughout the year.

"Christmas Around the World" was the theme carried out at the annual Girls aux-

Under the leadership of President Bill Knox the junior class of Olympia high school has wound its merry way through the year of '49-'50. Bill was assisted by Phil Skutt, vice president; Diane Hankins, secretary-treasurer and Lawrence Dennis, yell leader. Helping them over the rough spots were Miss Mary Margaret Anderson and Lawrence Pinson, junior class advisers.

The annual Junior day was held April 27 with the slogan, "Life Begins at '50." The theme of the talent assembly, "Progress," was carried out in four scenes depicting life in 1850, 1900, 1920 and 1950.

A wild west skit began the program with Sharon Mallory doing a tap routine as a gun totin' gal followed by Bill Sebastian playing the harmonica. The 1900's were represented by a scene in an ice cream parlor. Regular visitors to the parlor, Helen McKay and Jim Robinson, arrived in style on a bicycle-built-for-two. The O.H.S. barber shop quartet, Bill Burch, Dick Koehler,

The third scene was typical of the "Roaring Twenties," taking place in a speak-easy. It was complete with torch singer, Darlene LeMay, an impersonation of Al Jolson by Ken DeLacey, and the Charleston done by Bill Knox, Phil Skutt, Joyce Hershey, Helen McKay, Jeanne Butts and Barbara Straight. The finale, Horsey Horace's Juvenile Delinquent Mistake show, featured a program of talent portraying the year of 1950. On the program were Neil Muller, Bill Kotick and his Hepcats; a roller skating routine by Donna Campbell, Joyce Arnold, Irene Baker and Nancy York; Jack Benny and his violin, Willard Couch; Pat McGaughy singing "It's a Sure Thing" and Frank Hartung doing the hula, which he appropriately named "The Grass Hut."

Senior Acknowledgement

Donning of caps June 9 was a triple climax, ending the first half of the twentieth century, the first century of Olympia's existence and ending four eventful years for the "Centennial class," a class with pleasant memories and an eager future.

When the class of '50 entered in 1946, it was a group of confused little frosh with big ideas. Their first official act was to elect Paul Bracy, class president; Elsie Stubbs, vice president; Nancy Maschner, secretary; Tom Burguin, yell leader; Helen DeGarmo and Margaret Henderson, girls auxiliary representatives. Their next act was to contribute some of that mighty freshman talent to the Frosh-Soph mixer in the form of Phyllis Graham who sang.

As the second year rolled around the class was increased by those from Junior high and as a result elected a president from Junior high, Ivan Budd; Joanne Anderson, vice president; Lois Nylund, secretary; Sylvia Slaby, treasurer; Alex Crewdson, yell leader; Marilyn Isaacson and Molly Martin, girls auxiliary representatives. The Frosh-Soph mixer this year included some new talent from the sophomore class. A violin trio composed of Emily Walters, Tom Kingery, Pat Stark played two selections, Alex Crewdson and Charlene Willis played the piano and Phyllis Graham sang.

Not only did the class have musical talent, but they placed two men on the varsity basketball team, Dean Rockey, who broke the league scoring record, and Mac Partlow; two men on the baseball team, Sketer Ellis and Dean Rockey, and Larry Malloy, Mac Partlow and Dean Rockey on the football team.

The Girls Auxiliary Mothers tea was governed over by Joanne Anderson, social chairman of the girls auxiliary. Other committee chairmen were: Jane Lightburne, refreshments; Joanne Anderson, program; Patty McNamara, decorations; and Delores Plamondon, serving.

This year the class of '50 took third place on the first semester honor roll with 41 students. Honor winners were: Joanne Anderson, Tommiana Barnes, Ivan Budd, Wallace Budsberg, Glee Callahan, Maxine Colombo, Helen DeGarmo, Loretta Dubuque, Sketer Ellis, Donna Esterly, Carol Fleming, Mary Ann Garowski, Phyllis Graham, Joan Gunstone, Beverlee Haxton, Frances Horgdal, Dorothy Kanzler, Mary Ann Keenan, Valgene Lawrence, Roy Leicht, Marjorie Lindholm, Nancy Maschner, Patricia Moll, Lois Nylund, Janet Parsons, Joan Pringle, Elizabeth Reed, Betty Robbins, Dean Rockey, Ina Ruk, Pat Secrist, Shirley Simon, Bebe Skillman, Jim Smith, Harlan Sachs, Joan Stanton, Pat Stark, Shirley Stone, Vera Fern Vanncy, Emily Walters, Shirley Whitt.

Led by its two capable advisers, Miss Alma Olson and Alan Gellermann, the class of '50 reached its junior year. The big event of this year was Junior day. As a great surprise to all, the nonconforming junior class saluted the senior class, instead of cultivating the traditional rivalry between the two. The central theme of the talent assembly was gold mining in Alaska. Alex Crewdson acted as master of ceremonies. An old prospector portrayed by Virgil Burns found all this talent in an Alaskan saloon. The talent included a comic violin act by Pat Stark and Emily Walters; junior trio, Dorothy Kanzler, Marilyn Brower, Phyllis Graham, singing "For You" to the seniors; a boys quartet composed of Sketer Ellis, Mac Partlow, Dean Rockey, Ivan Budd singing, "I Didn't Know the Gun Was Loaded." Other vocalists on the program were Marilyn Isaacson, Marilyn Brower and Phyllis Graham; nine junior girls formed a chorus line also. It was one of the most outstanding junior days ever held. The junior class elected as their leaders for the year: Sketer Ellis, president; Harry Foster, vice president; Phyllis Graham, secretary; Molly Martin, treasurer and Alex Crewdson, yell leader.

Entering their fourth and final year, the senior class really took over the school. First they elected

A.S.B. president, Sketer Ellis; Boys club president, Mac Partlow; Girls club president, Elizabeth Reed and class officers, Ed Ackelson, president; Larry Malloy, vice president; Helen DeGarmo, secretary; Art Jenkins, treasurer and back for a third term, Alex Crewdson as yell leader.

The night before the big Armistice game the gals entertained Dads at the Father-Daughter banquet. Senior chairmen for the affair were Clara Campanile, general chairman; Louise Anders and Joanne Anderson, program booklet; Patty McNamara, program; Jean McKay, tickets and Charlotte Guffey, decorations. The theme of football was carried out by streamers and pennants representing Olympia and Aberdeen.

The next social event of the year was the annual Junior-Senior ball. Wynken, Blynken and Nod ruled that night with the help of Patty McNamara, Dick Swanson, Marilyn Armstrong, Royal Mower, Pat Brenner, Jane Lightburne, Ed Metcalf and Ed Ackelson. Carrying out the theme of "It's the law," the Boys club put on Dads night April 21. Senior committee chairmen were: Ways and means, Jerry Force; exhibit and displays, Harry Foster; tickets, Ed Ackelson; gym program, Dave Chilson; auditorium program, Ivan Budd; eats, Dick Swanson; publicity, Charles Cissna; welcome and ushers, Roger Bennett and invitations, Whitney Wilson. The same day the Girls club presented a centennial Mothers tea. Clara Campanile presided over the mothers and daughters with the assistance of Marilyn Armstrong, publicity; Tommiana Barnes, corsage; Carol Bennett and Margaret Cleveland, tickets; Harriet Krier, decorations and Louise Anders, serving.

And, of course, the year could not be complete without the annual May Court presided over by Queen Royal Mower and King Mac Partlow. Others in the court were Donna Voegelein, Joanne Anderson, Janet Parsons, Helen DeGarmo, Patty McNamara, Phyllis Graham, Dean Rockey, Ivan Budd, Ed Ackelson, Larry Malloy, Alex Crewdson, Sketer Ellis, Jerry Force, prime minister and Dave Chilson, court jester. This year the May Queen had a double honor. She also ruled over the centennial as the official queen. Royal and her court made many trips to nearby towns to advertise the centennial week.

Not only are the members of the senior class social-minded but they had some thespians of the stage with them also. Appearing in the Junior-Senior play were: Mac Partlow, Marilyn Armstrong, Janet Parsons, Jim Caldwell, Alex Crewdson and Russell Gruhlke. Assistant director was Patty McNamara. Program chairman, Jackie Claypool and tickets, Dana Van Gilder.

Ending this year the top honors went to Phyllis Graham who, with a grade point average of 3.92, was named Valedictorian. Donna Esterly was named Salutatorian with a 3.884 grade point average. The P.E.O. award went to Helen DeGarmo for scholarship and earning her way through school by working part time. The Most Valued student this year was Ivan Budd. The Rotary medal winner was Larry Malloy and Y's Mens Inspirational award went to Dean Rockey.

This year a new tradition was started. The yell staff sponsored a Homecoming queen who was elected from the senior class. Donna Voegelein was elected with attendants from the sophomore and junior classes. She was crowned during the half of the Olympia-Longview football game.

With all the confidence, enthusiasm and optimism of those sturdy pioneers of 1850, the class of 1950 steps out into the world and bids a fond and somewhat sad farewell to Olympia high.

ALMA MATER

O. H. S., our school so dear,
Colors white and blue,
You're the school we dearly love,
To you we'll e'er be true.
Fate may part us,
Years may pass,
Future all unknown;
Still our hearts may ever prove
Faithful to you alone.

A Pleasant Association

One of the things we like about our new building is that we can have our SUPERIOR PUBLISHING COMPANY under the same roof with us.

It is always gratifying to find the number of authors who as editors or staff members started long and successful writing careers working on their school yearbooks. We at ARTCRAFT are proud of our long record in training and helping editors and staff members to produce fine professional-appearing yearbooks and enjoy seeing ARTCRAFT editors achieve success in either the literary or the business world.

LOOKING BACK A FEW YEARS

MR. ALBERT SALISBURY, co-author of HERE ROLLED THE COVERED WAGONS and TWO CAPTAINS WEST, has this to say about his experience as a yearbook editor:

"At the time I was more concerned with the problems of producing a yearbook than with what the future held. It was only a few years later, however, that I could see the knowledge I had gained there had helped prepare me to become an author. It was then I realized and appreciated the material and information passed on to me by advisers, engravers and printers."
